General terms and conditions

1. The exhibition space must be reserved in the exhibition by filling out the form, and should be officially signed by the person authorized to sign on behalf of the exhibitor, and after receiving the space reservation form, the organizer reserves the right to reject any space reservation form at his absolute discretion without necessarily explaining the reasons for this refusal.
2. Featured display areas, will be calculated separately.
3. Any additional equipment and/or services, such as furniture and power supply, at the request of exhibitors, will be calculated separately.
4. The exhibitor is not entitled to cancel the booking and refund a total or part of the booking fee at all .
5. In all cases, the organizer and all those associated with it are not responsible for the safety of the exhibitor and his employees, agents, contractors, or safety of attendance, nor is he responsible for exhibits, appliances, equipment and/or other property of any kind, brought to the exhibition by exhibitors. The organizer is also not responsible for employees, agents, contractors, invitees or visitors in all cases, and the maximum liability of the organizer to the exhibitor, whether contracted or uncontracted, can be determined beyond the value of the space reservation form.
6. These general terms and conditions govern the relationship between the organizer and the exhibitor, apply to all services, whether current or future, which are provided by the organizer to the exhibitor, unless otherwise provided in a separate agreement, and the organizer reserves the right to change, add or modify any of these terms, and the organizer's decision is binding, in the event of any disagreement in the interpretation of these terms and conditions.
7. The exhibitor must ensure that it is fully covered by the insurance company, and that the policy is not limited to the risks to property, exhibits, and devices that the exhibitor brought to the exhibition. Rather, this must go beyond that to include public responsibility and comprehensive protection against any loss or damage caused by any circumstance at all due to fire and/or water, theft, accidents or any other reason. The exhibitor must secure against others and provide compensation. The organizer must also be removed from any harm in relation to all amounts, claims and expenses that may subject the organizer to compensation and losses resulting from the injury of any person (including exhibition visitors, organizer's staff), Agents or contractors) also for property damage, where damages are caused by any act or default by the exhibitor and/or employees, agents, contractors and/or invitees, so the exhibitor is required to provide evidence to the organizer that he or she has sufficient insurance cover accepted by the organizer, as well as the exhibitor to ensure that his temporary employees, or contractors, are all insured against Labour compensation claims, and must extend the period of Secure the exhibitor or any of his employees, agents, or contractors from the moment they enter the exhibition ground, until they leave the event, with the end of the exhibition period until all their exhibits and property are removed.

8. In any case, the organizer may not be responsible for any restrictions or circumstances preventing the construction, installation, completion of modifications or dismantling of the reserved booth, entry and removal of exhibits or the failure of any service or any amenities provided by hall owners or other third parties.
9. The contractor for booking a booth is responsible for ensuring that all exhibitors within the pavilion are fully aware of the terms of the form, with the consent to comply with the general terms and conditions of the exhibition and its rules.
10. The exhibitor must not transfer, dispose, or rent part of its space or any part of the exhibition space, whether for financial or other remuneration. the exhibitor, if he or she is an agent, distributor or licensee, must at the time of application mention the names of the main entities (persons) he will represent during the exhibition, which does not prevent exhibitors from displaying products after they have become distributors or licensed by the main owners, after submitting the application (Signing the contract, and obtaining prior written permission from the organizer.
11. The organizer must not be responsible to the exhibitor for any total cancellation, or partial opening of the exhibition, either entirely or partially, because the company does not perform its obligations under this contract (this form), or any modifications or changes to each or any of the exhibition's rules and regulations due to any circumstances beyond the control of the organizer.
12. If the organizer does not implement the agreement, or takes a long time to implement it, in accordance with the terms established under this agreement, this in no way constitutes a waiver by the organizer of his rights.
